Hi I’m Cheyenne and I was asked by the President of the Archaeology Club to share my summer experience with my fellow Boise Broncos!

This year marks my senior year where, I will be graduating with my degree in Anthropology. This past summer, I was fortunate to have been selected to participate at a live archaeology dig at one of the former President’s home, Thomas Jefferson’s Plantation. It is a Field school located in Poplar Forest, Virginia and was focused on Africans and African American Archaeology. We were excavating at units located at the site, which used to be the site of a slave cabin dating to the antebellum period (1828-1865). Along with the slave cabin we are also looking for the remains of a possible stable that could date to the Jefferson-era.

The days were hot and muggy and the work is back breaking but what a delight when we, Dina Meller who is from New Jersey and recently graduated from Rutgers University, found an actual ‘Three Cent’ coin dated at 1854. This was one of our most astonishing finds on the plantation!

The summer was filled with lots of information on our former President and his connection with the University of Virginia. I had a blast this past summer meeting all the people who are involved with preserving this rich history of Thomas Jefferson and I would highly recommend it to anyone who is interested in history, archaeology or anthropology to experience this Field school it was well worth the time.
